

BRIEF TELEGRAPHIC DESPATCHES TELLS OF THE DAY'S EVENTS

British Torpedo Boat Lost and Seven Drowned--Russian Revolutionists Purchase Automobiles--Lighting Kills Party of Mourners

TORPEDO BOAT LOST.

London, May 19.—An Admiralty despatch confirming a press announcement of the loss of the British torpedo boat No. 56, says she was in tow of the unprotected cruiser Argonaut, when she capsized and sank. She carried a crew of thirty officers and men, seven of whom are missing.

JUDGE BANQUETTED.

Yorkton, May 19.—A complimentary banquet was tendered Mr. Justice Newlands by the bar and court officials of Yorkton at the conclusion of the Spring sitting. It was a most enjoyable function.

REVOLUTIONISTS BUY AUTOS.

St. Petersburg, May 19.—The police have discovered that revolutionists have imported over a score of automobiles into St. Petersburg for use in case of an uprising. Motor cars have been transferred to individuals who hold them until they are needed, mourners killed by lightning.

MOURNERS KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Berlin, May 18.—Thirteen mourners, who were at the grave side during the funeral of T. A. Silesia today were struck by lightning and killed. Twenty others were severely burned.

THIEVES BLEW OPEN A SAFE.

Salisbury, Maryland, May 19.—A gang of five men blew open the safe at the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway station today with nitroglycerine, but secured no cash. One of the burglars was struck by a piece of iron from the safe and badly hurt. The thieves took their injured companion two miles to a farm house where they left him unconscious.

Gretna is happy.

GRETTA IS HAPPY.

Gretna, May 19.—Extensive railroad yards are planned at Gretna by the Midland Railway Company. Work of construction will be rushed to completion as soon as the temporary delay, caused by waiting for material, is overcome. The town is full of railway men. It makes business brisk which is likely to continue as Gretna will be the central distributing point for some time as the work progresses.

WAGGON SCORES.

Winnipeg, May 19.—Hancock 4, Houston 10, Calumet 9, Lake Linden 7, Fargo 3, Duluth 2; Winnipeg Grand Forks, rain, no game. Winnipeg grain prices.—78 1/2¢ 1/2

WINNIPEG GRAIN PRICES.

Winnipeg, May 19.—No. 1 northern, 80 3/4¢; No. 2, 78 1/4¢; No. 3, 76 3/4¢; No. 2 white oats, 37 1/2¢; No. 3 barley, 42 1/2¢; No. 1 flax, 1 1/3¢, much in demand.

MUCH IN DEMAND.

Berlin, May 19.—Since the statement of the engagement of Miss Bertha Krupp, the richest woman in the world to an unknown suitor has been published the fact has developed that in addition to the proposal which she has accepted, the German heiress has received 302 proposals. This does not include offers from some thousands of more would-be suitors who have sent letters to Miss Krupp. Among the 302 eligible suitors who offered themselves were twelve royal princes from reigning families.

WM. RAMSAY BUILDS HOTHOUSE

Files Plans With Building Inspector For Large Greenhouse to be Built on Eleventh Street

Wm. Ramsay filed plans at the building inspector's office this morning for a $10,000 greenhouse to be built on the east side of Eleventh street, between Jasper and Victoria, construction on which is to be commenced at once. Since ceasing his labors in the pedagogic field, Mr. Ramsay has been making a careful study of the hot house industry and has made two trips east to visit the famous Dale estate greenhouses in Brampton, and similar institutions in other eastern centres, and from what he has been able to learn and from his experience with his small greenhouse on Elizabeth street, he has satisfied himself that there is money to be made in the hot house business in Edmonton. The building he intends to put up will have 150 feet frontage on Eleventh street, covering the entire frontage of the three lots and will extend 110 feet back, making one of the largest greenhouses west of Winnipeg.

THE CALGARY SUMMER FAIR

Prize List Issued for Southern City Big Annual Event

Calgary, May 17.—The prize list of the Inter-Western Pacific Exhibition to be held at Calgary on the 10th, 11th and 12th of July next, has just been issued. Special excursion rates have been secured for passengers to Calgary during the week of the fair, and the freight arrangements for live stock are also very liberal.

As usual, the prizes offered for horses are very generous. A special prize of $25 is donated by the Canadian Hackney Horse Society. The Massey-Harris Company offers a special prize for the best agricultural colt, six months old or under, and the North West Mounted Police Department is again to the front with liberal prizes for horses suitable for police remounts. The most attractive feature of the prize list is the Shorthorn class, where over $300, is offered in prize. In Herefords the prize list has been somewhat improved over previous years. The fair is again offering liberal prizes for sheep, purebreds and grades, and generous prizes are also offered for the various grades of swine. In Poultry a radical departure has been made, the pen exhibits being discontinued in favor of single birds. The dog classes are again under the management of the Alberta Kennel club, upon the same conditions as prevailed last year. Preparations are being made for a large exhibit of dairy products. Special cold storage facilities are now being installed in the main building in order that proper care may be taken of this interesting section of the exhibition.

The prizes for grains and grasses are particularly liberal. The usual generous proposition is made for articles of domestic production, art, ladies' work; and facilities are also furnished for a large manufacturers and industrial exhibit. Copies of the prize list and further information may be obtained by communicating with C. W. Peterson, manager, Calgary, Alta.

NEW FRUIT CO. FOR EDMONTON

R. J. Hamilton and J. S. Moody Form a Company to Handle Wholesale Fruits

R. J. Hamilton, who, until recently, was manager for the Oscar Brown Co. in this city, and J. G. Moody, who closed out the business of the Roseland Fruit & Produce Company in order to come to Edmonton, have formed a partnership to establish a wholesale fruit business in Edmonton and are already circulating the trade. They intend to handle everything in the line of California, British Columbia, and local fruit. They already have a large order on the way from the coast, which will be to hand in a few days. For temporary premises they have leased the curling rink on Second street, for the summer, but have made arrangements with some local people to build them a brick and stone steam-heated and artificially-cooled building, designed for the purposes of their business.

Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Moody are both thoroughly familiar with all the details of the trade, having been connected with the business in Alberta and B. C. for several years and should not be long in building up a large trade. The firm name of their company will be the Edmonton Fruit and Produce Company.

MORSE ARRIVES IN WINNIPEG

Well Satisfied with Progress Being Made on Construction.

Winnipeg, May 19.—F. W. Morse, general manager of the G.T.P., and partly reached Winnipeg last night in the private car "International" which was attached to the Atlantic express. As to matters of terminals in Winnipeg, Edmonton or intermediate points Mr. Morse had nothing to divulge. He had just returned after an extended inspection of construction work on the various sections between Portage la Prairie and Edmonton and was well satisfied with the progress. Some time was spent looking over the section between Portage and Touchwood Hills which is being constructed by Messrs McDonald and McMillan. Their contract covers over 275 miles and over 4,000 men are employed. On the section covered by the Canadian White Company's contract which extends from Touchwood Hills to a point 145 miles west, work was just starting. Construction was also in progress on the remainder of the road, the section between there and Edmonton being built by Foley Bros. and Larson. Besides Mr. Morse there are in the party B. B. Keller, chief engineer, D'Arcy Tait assistant solicitor, and J. G. Carruthers of Montreal.

OPPOSITION DID NOT WANT AN INVESTIGATION COMMITTEE

Insinuated Charges But Introduced Amendment to Prevent These Being Investigated

Toronto, May 18.—There is no instance on record of an Opposition making such a pitiable exhibition as was witnessed in the House of Commons this afternoon. The other evening several Conservatives made serious charges against those responsible for the supplies of the expedition to the Arctic. It was said that some of the supplies were devoted to other purposes and did not find their way on board the steamer. Sir Wilfrid Laurier there and then promised an investigation. He said that he would grant a commission of enquiry. He moved today for a committee. Instead of accepting this motion which was presented at the request of the Opposition, Mr. Borden got up and opposed, moving an amendment thereto. Mr. Foster, Dr. Reid, Mr. Northrup and others pounded the motion all afternoon on the ground that the matter was trifling and not worthy of investigation. The amendment was voted down and when the main motion was reached all the Conservatives, including the leader of the Opposition and Mr. Foster voted for the committee, notwithstanding their attacks on the motion.

The vote was unique, 132 for and none against.

OTTAWA, MAY 18.—An order in council has been passed allowing to the western section of the Grand Trunk Pacific, such Dominion lands as they may require for right of way, or for station grounds, workshops, etc. The company will also be considered first applicant for mining rights on such lands as they may purchase for such purposes.

REVILLON BROS. SECURE CHARTER.

Ottawa, May 16.—The private bills committee of the Commons approved today of a bill granting federal incorporation to the French for trading company known as Revillon Bros., which has recently been establishing posts in remote districts of Canada, and which is the most formidable rival that the Hudson's Bay company has in these parts. The charter allows them a capital of $5,404,000. The bill, which asked most extensive powers, was amended in several particulars. In its amended form it allows them to operate vessels for the carriage of passengers and merchandise, telegraph and tele-mills, water powers, mining rights, head lands, to hold lands, to forward moneys, and fishing and hunting rights. The company asked power to carry on a banking business, but the utmost limit to which the committee would go in this connection was to allow them the right to accept deposits from their employees, upon such interest terms as may be agreed upon. Clause 9, which empowered them to carry on a savings bank, was withheld. Clause 16, which asked expropriation powers similar to those held by the railway corporations, was also knocked out. The bill was also amended to allow the construction of railway lines not exceeding ten miles in length, to connect their posts with existing lines of railway. Thieves blow open a safe.

Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

HURONIC HAD A MISHAP.

Sault Ste Marie, May 18.—The Huronic while entering the upper channel approach last night, struck the channel side, damaging her bulkheads and admitting water to her three starboard compartments. The cargo is said to be undamaged.

GOING OUT OF BUSINESS.

Salt Lake, May 18.—The Mormon church is going out of business. Its principal holdings in the Salt Lake, the Utah Light & Railway Company, are to be taken over by a $25,000,000 corporation composed of English and American capitalists.

STRATHCONA NEWS ITEMS

The Bulletin's Daily Budget From the Strathcona

Strathcona, May 18.—The annual meeting of the Strathcona Liberal Association was held last night in the O. F. Hall here, in the Douglas block. There was a fair representative number present, with President N. D. Mills in the chair. Minutes of last meeting were read by Dr. L. L. Fuller. These minutes were adopted on motion of Messrs. J. M. Douglas and J. S. Connolly. Several communications were also read and a number of accounts presented and financial statement given which showed that the finances were in a flourishing condition. The financial statement, as read by the secretary-treasurer, was on motion of Messrs. Douglas and MacKenzie, received and adopted.

The wisdom of renting rooms for reading room and club room purposes came up for discussion and Mr. Blain who had been previously appointed to look into the matter, made a special report thereon. Much discussion followed on this report, in which the following gentlemen participated: Messrs. McKinnon, Blain, McKennie, Douglas, Lang, Dr. Fuller and J. H. Macdonald. On motion of Messrs. MacKenzie and McKinnon, Mr. Blain's report was received and laid over for further discussion. Mr. Geo. Thompson next addressed the meeting to the Executive of the Association, asking what were its powers, scope and purpose and gave it as his opinion that they were too arbitrary in some of their late acts. The chairman briefly explained what were the duties of that body and how they had, in the past, performed those duties, stating that in many cases there was not time to call the Association together to consult them, as action had often to be taken at once. An animated and interesting discussion by the executive followed in which Messrs. McKinnon, Thompson, Macdonald, Dr. Holton, MacKenzie, Lang and Dr. Wainwright took part, after which Messrs. MacKenzie and Dr. Holton moved that a committee, consisting of Messrs. Galbraith, Douglas and McKinnon be appointed to define the duties of the Executive council.—Carried.

VAUDEVILLE FOR EDMONTON

O. C. Ross, of Minneapolis, Leases Premises For Family Theatre to be Opened June 15th

O. C. Ross, of Minneapolis, a theatrical man of extensive experience, who has been in the city for a week or ten days past quietly completing arrangements, announced to-day that he has closed a deal with Mr. K. W. McLeod, for premises on McDougall street next door to the temporary post office building, in which to open a continuous performance family theatre. Mr. Ross came to the city a few days ago to look into the possibilities for a show house here, and was so impressed with the outlook that he immediately opened negotiations with Mr. McLeod to provide him with a house. A. M. Calderon, architect, has the plans under way, and workmen are busy this afternoon clearing the grounds and making preparations for construction, which will commence Monday. The house will be 30 x 80, with a spacious stage and a seating capacity that will comfortably accommodate 400 people. The street front will be built after the colonial portico style, presenting a neat and attractive appearance.

Mr. Ross states that he has a connection with the Consolidated circuit, which is the well known "Northwest Theatrical Company" on the coast and in the Northwestern States, and that he will present nothing but first class attractions, with moving pictures, illustrated songs, high-class vaudeville and spectacular productions, the same as seen in the leading family theatres of the coast and the east.

The transportation problem has always been the stumbling block for show men in Edmonton, but Mr. Ross hopes to be able to build up a circuit via Edmonton, Calgary and the south by which he will be able to book the best attractions crossing the continent. He expects to have his house opened under the acceptance of the tender of not later than June 15th.

MAIL CLERK IDENTIFIES ROBBERS

Kamloops, May 17.—Mail Clerk McQuarrie identified Edwards last night positively. Colquhoun remains silent. Shorty talks and said last night in jail that he knew Fernie, who had spoken to them, was after them, but they were taken by surprise by the unexpected arrival of the mounted police at the time they were captured, otherwise some of the police would have got it as well as himself, he said. Edwards has a tattoo mark on his wrist. The tattoo cure he took from the mail car and the goggles he wore were found on him. The heel of one shoe, with the peculiar arrangement of the nails, corresponds exactly with the tracks at the scene of the hold-up. No picks, shovels or tools usually carried by prospectors were found with the trio; nothing but a complete arsenal.

Kamloops, May 17.—C. P. R. Detective Bullick, interviewed this morning, said—

"I have not the slightest doubt that the old man in custody is Bill Miner. I am acquainted with Miner's sisters, and can recognize the family likeness even if I had not other proof. Last night I saw the man stripped. He was lathering his hands and I asked him to turn them over, wishing to identify a stencil mark on his arm. He turned his hand over, but not enough for me to see all of it. I asked him again when he was wiping his face, and on his second refusal seized hold of the arm and turned it over.

"There was the dancing-girl tattoo well known to be on O'd Bill Miner's arm. Other marks correspond also. He has a scar on his hand which corresponds with the Pinkerton description. His eyes also are unmistakable."

The Strathcona Riding Club gave a very successful dance in Ross Hall on Tuesday evening. About forty couples were present. Music was furnished by Clarke's orchestra. Refreshments were served at midnight. Much credit is due the executive for a very pleasant evening. The Club will give another dance next week.

"SCOTS WHA HAE"

Last night at the Queens Avenue Presbyterian church, Mr. Gavin Spence, of Edinburgh, and Miss Nannie Strachan, of Galashiels, gave one of their evenings of Scottish song and story. Never has anything of this nature so appealed to an audience here as their portrayal of Scottish song. Mr. Spence is rightly termed the prince of story tellers, and his robust tenor voice rendered the old Scotch songs in a style of such power and sweetness, that stirred the blood of even those who are not of Scotch birth.

"The Hundred Pipers an' a'!" was fine, while his "Helen's Rory" convulsed the house, as did his quaint stories. He clearly demonstrates the fallacy of the old saying that it takes an axe to get a joke in a Scotchman's head. But to Miss Strachan must be given the palm for her superb voice and technique. The press have been unanimous in declaring that her equal has not been heard in the Northwest. There is no trafficking upon patriotism with Strachan. Such purity and range of voice when she gave "The Scottish Bluebells," and "Callie Herrin," was a wonderful portrayal of Scottish life. Other of her numbers were "Comin' thro' the Rye," sung in a naive, quaint manner peculiar to herself, "Whist! an' I'll come to ye, my lad," "Mary of Argyle," "Callie On," "Doon the burn, Davie lad," etc. The duets, "Crookit Bowber" and "When Ye Gang Awa," were a revelation as rendered by this clever couple.

Monday night a complete change of program will be presented including the "Jewel Song" from "Faust," in compliance with the requests that something classical be given. Miss Strachan is a pupil of Albert B. Bach of Edinburgh, and was "discovered" by Scotland's greatest tenor, Durward Lely, with whom she toured Britain.

PURSUED WOMAN WITH A KNIFE

Saskatoon Capital: The locality of Vonda was the scene last Sunday of a very exciting occurrence in which a Hungarian figured most prominently. The man, for reasons known only to himself, concealed himself behind a hill for the purpose, it appears, of way-laying Mrs. Gold. After waiting patiently for some time, he at last had the satisfaction of seeing the woman approaching, but, contrary to his calculations, she carried in her arms a small child. He remained motionless until the woman was within a few yards of him, then, darting forward with a knife in one hand, he called on his unsuspecting victim to halt. Terrified at the sight of the man, and heedless of threats, the woman, after giving one starting cry, fled for her life, followed by her assailant, who pursued the now thoroughly frightened woman to her husband's door. Meantime many neighbors alarmed by her cries, had hastened to the scene, arriving just in time to see the man making himself scarce. Immediately the mounted police were notified that there was a crazy man at large, and, with their usual promptness, they hurried to the spot. After some little difficulty they succeeded in landing the miscreant on Wednesday. He was brought to Saskatoon, but, owing to his nationality and the difficulty experienced in obtaining an interpreter, he was held here, for some time, afterwards being taken to Reuther pending further evidence.

HUNGERING FOR FILTH

"Graft," "Bribe-taking," "shady transactions," "sketches," "raids," "plunderers." This is the fairly generous sprinkling of vigorous language which a local contemporary hurls at the Federal Government in the course of a quarter column editorial. The effusion does not, of course, attempt to cite any specific case of any one of these alleged crimes having been committed by anybody nor does it condescend to admit by implication or otherwise the necessity of backing up such sweeping assertions by some fragment of evidence. The language in the quantity and quality of the evil it imputes but neither directly charges nor attempts to prove is almost worthy the most able member for North Toronto in whose vilified propensities this form of irresponsible slander originated and by whose influence it has become popularized as a weapon in the hands of his party. "Evil communications corrupt good manners." Never was the maxim better illustrated than by the howling of the journalistic jackal which gluts its columns with the verbal garbage of the political scavenger.

ROYAL NORTH-WEST MOUNTED POLICE

It is now over thirty years since the Northwest Mounted Police was organized as a force for extending law into what was then the Great Lone Land of the Northwest. The West has changed marvelously since 1871, but throughout all these changes the police force has remained the guardians of life and property, adapting itself to the new conditions and extending its field of operations as pioneers pushed the frontier farther north. The efficiency of the force has been witnessed by the results and has won for the Police an enviable reputation wherever the splendid record is known. But the best testimony to the service is that the people of the West who have been dependent on the Police for the maintenance of peace and order, contribute their measure of praise to the manner in which the work has been done.

The settlement of the country has robbed the life of something of the glamour of romance which surrounded it in earlier days, but has by no means lightened the duties of the policeman. A quarter of a century since when the white people in the country were contained in a few small settlements scattered between the Great Lakes and the mountains and far outnumbered by the Indians, and when the relations between the races were far less peaceful than to-day, enlistment in the force resembled somewhat enrollment for military service, and the policeman was regarded with sentiment akin to that for the soldier who volunteers for service on the frontier. The coming of the settler has lessened the military glory, but not the police duty, and the Mounted Policeman is to-day more of a policeman and less of a soldier than in the old days.

Settlement has reversed the conditions which gave military prestige to the force, and with the reversal of the conditions the prestige has been sacrificed in an attempt to keep pace with the changing times. Formerly the force was concentrated in a few large divisions and patrolled the country in detachments; now it is broken into a large number of small detachments with permanent headquarters and separate spheres of operation. This change alone has tended largely to destroy the military nature of the organization, but it was necessitated by the changing conditions, and that it has been made without destroying the efficiency of the force is evidence of the quality and spirit of both officers and men.

How many and varied are the duties of the Mounted Policeman may not be understood by those who have not long been resident in the West, and have given little consideration to the method of administering law outside the towns and cities. Primarily the Mounted Police duties at the present times are the duties performed by the county constables in the eastern Provinces, but the Mounted Policeman has other duties which the constable has not. The constable's business is to arrest those of whom warrants have been issued. But the Mounted Policeman has far broader duties than this. It is his general duty to enforce the law and to maintain order, and the interpretation of this general duty is decidedly liberal. Broadly speaking, wherever outside an incorporated municipality law is violated or order is disturbed, it is the duty of the policeman to adjust matters. The scope of his duties is well illustrated in the annual report of the Department recently issued. It instances Inspector General of Prince Albert, who travelled 1,750 miles by canoe and dog trail into the far north to enquire into a case of alleged murder; of Corporal Murphy, who left Dawson by dog trail for Fort McPherson on the Peel river, by an absolutely unknown route across the mountain ranges, a distance of over 500 miles; of Inspector McGinnis and Sergeant Egan, who penetrated 300 miles into the wilds of Keewatin where Indians asserted that the foot of white men never before trod; of Constable Redley, who travelled from Fort Chipewyan to Fort Saskatchewan in the depth of winter in charge of an unfortunate lunatic, and whose hardship and anxiety of the journey rendered himself insane; of Constable Conrad, who galloped from safety to the help of a settler and his family, in deadly peril by a tremendous prairie fire, and fought it, single and almost suffocated, till the greater part of his clothing was burned off him.

How well the force discharges its heavy responsibilities is shown by the summary of the report. Out of 4,647 cases entered, convictions were secured in 3,647, 822 were dismissed or withdrawn, and 58 were still pending at the time the report was issued. There were 362 more convictions than in 1904, an increase of 9 per cent., a most satisfactory showing in consideration of the fact that the population has increased 25 per cent. Among the year's convictions were 78 for supplying liquor to Indians, a nefarious traffic that has greatly decreased by reason of the efficient patrol, 138 for setting out prairie fires, an offence for which evidence necessary to secure conviction is difficult to obtain, and 34 for horse stealing, besides numerous sentences for poisoning, and illegally branding horses and cattle, and kindred offences.

The force at present consists of fifty-four officers, six hundred and fifty non-commissioned officers and men one hundred and four interpreters, guides, artisans and special constables a total of eight hundred and thirteen, with six hundred and six horses. Of these two hundred and twenty-eight men and ninety-three horses are in the Yukon. The force is divided into ten divisions and has one hundred and four outposts. When Alberta and Saskatchewan were constituted provinces the duty of maintaining law and order devolved from the Federal to the Provincial Government and the question arose whether the Mounted Police would be maintained in the new Provinces or whether a system similar to that of the other Provinces would be established. The disposition of both Provincial Governments appears to be to make arrangement with the Federal Government to preserve the Mounted Police. Should this be found practicable the course will be generally approved by the people who have lived in the West and have known the merits of the force.

EASTERN SETTLEMENT

Ottawa, May 11.—Mr. Turfitt, East Assinibola, made a very practical speech dealing with the administration of the land department and the immigration policy of the interior department during the time that Mr. Sifton was in charge, and up to the present time. In the old days, he said, people came to Canada, but they did not stay. The construction of the C.P.R. brought in thousands and thousands, but they did not remain. Mr. Ames talked of automatic cancellation of homesteads under the Conservatives, but township after township was all populated under that system. The population of the west in those days was caused by the bad administration of the interior department. The increase of population, and the rapid settlement of the west were on the other hand a splendid testimony to Mr. Sifton's administration of the department.

As to the law alienated it was not the Liberals that had done so. The complaint now was that the land was being too quickly taken up. Surely the sooner the west was settled the better.

Mr. Turfitt said that he spent a large part of his time in the west before and during the last election, and he never heard a complaint of the land administration or the immigration policy of the government. That was one of the reasons why the Conservatives as well as the Liberals had sent so large a Liberal majority from the west to Parliament.

The trouble with the old government was that the land was administered by eastern men who knew nothing about it. As to the charge that for twenty-five years settlers had been waiting for their patents the opposition was naturally responsible for fifteen of those years and the Liberals only ten. As to blanketing homestead entries the difficulty arose about the time he was leaving the department.

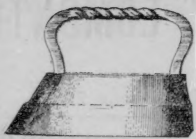

At that time there was a rush of immigration from the United States. Some of the new arrivals adopted some of the tactics which were in vogue in the United States to get hold of land to which they were not entitled. The Canadians followed the example. Privileges given to bona fide settlers were frequently abused. In the old days there were not the same stringencies for homesteads as now. It was therefore very proper for the minister to adopt more stringent regulations as had been done.

It was impossible to run the department of the Interior by an automatic system. The statement of Mr. Ames that he heard of a homesteader offering his homestead for sale. He (Turfitt) said that he had heard of hundreds of these, but never found the proof. Whenever a man wanted to sell his homestead, then it could be cancelled at once. The information that Mr. Ames got was not very reliable. Mr. Turfitt gave some specimens how the land department was conducted in the old days. Any officer that would deprive a homesteader of his land on a technicality, when Mr. Sifton was head of the department, would speedily be dismissed. He (Turfitt) cited the extreme hardships which the settlers had to undergo when the Conservatives were in power, through being deprived of their homesteads. Conservatives as well as Liberals were harassed by the Conservatives, and that was why the country made very little progress in those days. It was because the land department was well administered and an energetic immigration policy in force that brought progress and prosperity to the west. He gave several of the changes that were made by Mr. Sifton. The necessity of putting a second house on the second homestead was done away with. A somewhat similar change was made in regard to the second residence. It was grossly stupid to make the son build a house when he could well live in with his father. Several other important changes were made by Mr. Sifton, all tending to encourage the policy of the land for the settler.

Britain's New Monster of the Deep.

All the world is watching with deep interest the construction of this latest leviathan of war, which was recently launched at Portsmouth, and will be ready for service within a year.

Writing of the terrible power of this new battleship, an English naval expert recently said:

Nothing so devastating as this concentrated destruction has ever been conceived in the brain of man. It is impossible to picture the result of one-minute well directed fire at an enemy's ship; and when one minute is followed by others the effect would be too terrible for words, presuming the gunners get the range and fire as at a target practice.

To this length has the contest for sea power gone; and this is not the end; for the time is not far distant when the British ensign will fly over fleets and squadrons of Dreadnoughts, vessels costing a million and a half pounds sterling or more; each with ten or twelve-inch guns, which will engage an antagonist when three or four miles distant, and will pour in a succession of shells, each weighing 350 pounds and carrying wholesale destruction in its wake.

When Admiral Togo fought and overwhelmed the Russian fleet in the Sea of Japan, the only foreigners on board his vessel were several British officers, detailed to secure such technical information as may only be had from observing an actual battle at sea.

Hurrying home with a mass of data, these experts submitted their information and deductions to various British Construction Boards. The Dreadnought is the result.

No time was lost in beginning, and the work has progressed with activity that is unprecedented. In October the keel was laid; the hull was launched on February 10, and in another year the powerful vessel, it is expected will be proudly bearing the flaming St. George's cross upon the waves.

A number of new features are embodied in the Dreadnought, but so carefully have the plans been guarded that only the leading characteristics may be stated with accuracy.

Very frankly, British authorities state that they believe they have a world beater in the new battleship; and they assert that other nations shall benefit from their designs.

Offensive and defensive power, speed and a large cruising radius are the principle requirements of a war vessel.

Within three years a mile has been added to the radius of effective gunfire, and the substitution of turbines for reciprocating engines has opened the way for material increase in speed and armament.

Displacement of the Dreadnought has been increased 4,000 tons over the new British battleships now afloat being 18,500 tons. She is 500 feet long, 82 feet in beam, and will cost, when completed, more than $3,000,000.

As she is the first battleship to be equipped with turbine engines, the experiment is being watched with eager interest by other nations. So thoroughly convinced are the authorities of the superiority of this class of machinery that all British warships planned to be started this year will be similarly equipped.

Not only that, but the boilers are being constructed to submit the substitution of oil for fuel. Recent experiments in this line it is said, have proved very successful.

Four propellers on four shafts are expected to give the Dreadnought a speed of twenty-one knots an hour. Should this speed be realized, the ship will be practically invulnerable under present conditions; indeed, she should prove a match for any other two battleships, since she will be able to choose her own distance and position and fight a long range action with her big twelve-inch guns.

Moreover, such a great speed will enable her to overhaul any battleship now on the seas or building, should she condescend to such work, she could be an effective commerce destroyer.

The ship will have mechanism for economical cruising, low speed and highest speed. Under the water the stern is double, permitting the employment of two rudders, twenty or more feet apart, and guaranteeing greater effectiveness and quickness in maneuvering power.

Reduction of machinery space and weight permitted by the use of turbines and the large size of the vessel allow heavier armor than has ever before been employed and of the better protection of all parts of the ship. The heaviest belts of armor are carried completely from bow to stern, and well down on the underbody.

Structurally, too, the Dreadnought is being built with a view to resisting the severe racking effects of gunfire. This is a result of the lesson learned in the Sea of Japan fight.

When the heavy, high power shells of the Japanese fleet exploded in the water near the Russian vessels, they cracked the plates and opened great leaks in the latter.

Both in that battle and in the naval action off Port Arthur this new long ranges, shells fell short, but near the Russian ships, they ploughed several feet beneath the surface and approached close to the under hulls before exploding.

In this way the Japanese shells had much the effect of mines, bending plates and causing serious leaks.

The underbody of the Dreadnought is to be more heavily armored than usual to guard against such danger. Above water the heavy armor is carried to the upper deck, and nowhere is it pierced by castments.

Having arranged to their satisfaction the defensive equipment, the British experts turned their attention to weapons of offense; and again looked for enlightenment to the lessons learned in the Russo-Japanese war.

The battles of Admiral Togo were won by superior nobility and heavy, massed fire gun. The Russian ships were shattered by heavy shot and splintered by shell.

Experts became convinced that twelve-inch guns, rather longer than those ordinarily in use would prove the most destructive weapons of attack.

The argument of the Dreadnought will consist, principally, of ten of the new twelve-inch guns. The power of these weapons has been so greatly increased of late that the velocity of their shells is now double that of shells discharged from nine-inch guns, giving terrible effect when a number are fired in broadside.

By an ingenious arrangement the Dreadnought will be able to fire a wonderful large proportion of her big guns in every direction.

As the ship is designed for long-range conflict against armored vessels this heavy battery with the latest improvements in gunnery will enable her to fight effectively at a distance of six miles. It is believed that the shells can be thrown three times that distance.

All eleven big guns are to be mounted at nearly the same level on the upper deck, two in the forward turret, two in the after turret and three on each broadside, in single turrets. They will be of the vitreous type and about forty-five calibres in length, or nearly forty-five feet.

Each gun is to throw a shell of 350 pounds, with a muzzle velocity of 45,568 feet per second compared with 33,622 foot tons of guns upon the newest English battleships now in commission.

Unlike all other British and foreign battleships built within the last thirty years, the Dreadnought will carry no intermediate or secondary battery of 9.2-inch, 7.5-inch or 6-inch guns.

Being the largest and most powerful warship afloat, she will have for offensive work only the biggest and most powerful guns.

The only other guns carried will be rapid-fire three-inch rifles, for repelling torpedo boat attacks. Such guns, throw shot weighing sixteen pounds, and can be operated with great rapidity.

One of the radical changes resulting from the lessons taught by actual warfare is the elimination of the secondary battery which has long been considered of vital importance, and the reduction of armament to two types.

It has been demonstrated that the six-inch gun, which seems to be a favorite in the American Navy, is too light to be effective at the long range at which modern sea battles are fought; while it is too heavy and not rapid enough in fire for use against torpedo boats.

Some marked improvements have been made, it is said in the battery mechanism and arrangements for rapid firing, although these secrets are double guarded.

The First Lord of the Admiralty has stated however, that the principle of firing the guns by electricity has been perfected, and that the new ship will have also the most modern of wireless telegraph plants.

Experience in gunnery is expected to reach its highest point on the Dreadnought, as her great bulk and turbine engine will afford a remarkably steady gun platform.

It would seem that the British have cause for considerable pride in this terror of the sea, should she meet all expectations.

In the first place she is being built by the government at a cost of 10 per cent below the usual cost of battleship construction.

But the most important lesson demonstrated is the speed with which the ship is being built. As she represents such revolutionary ideas in battleship construction and equipment, this speed of course, is due to the desire of the Admiralty to subject her to thorough tests before proceeding with any more vessels of the class.

Turning out a completed battleship of the class in less than eighteen months is record-breaking time. The significance to other nations lies in England's power to repeat the process, should that country become involved in a lengthy war.

In Great Britain there are about a dozen yards, including those of the government, which are believed to be capable of duplicating this building ered by the Russo-Japanese war England could create a dozen battleships of the Dreadnought's class — enough possibly, to decide the conflict.

It is understood that work will be begun by the British Admiralty upon at least four vessels of the Dreadnought's class as soon as the latest experiment is proved a success.

Recently the United States Board of Naval Construction recommended to the Secretary of the Navy that builders required to submit bids for the construction of the new battleships Michigan and South Carolina with turbine machinery as well as with reciprocating engines so that the turbines may be adopted if deemed desirable.

These two ships are to be of 16,000 tons complement. Each will carry eight twelve-inch guns, four forward and four aft. Even if capable of high speed, these vessels will not be capable of meeting the Dreadnought on anything like equal terms.

In discussing tentative plans for the battleship or battleships to be authorized at the present session of Congress, experts reveal a difference.

The general board is in favor of 18,000 tons rather than of the 16,000 tons class, in order to keep pace with recent English, French and Russian construction.

Belief is growing however—largely due, no doubt, to revelations concerning this Dreadnought—that an additional 2,000 tons would not prove sufficient, and that vessels of 20,000 tons, of great speed and of tremendous offensive power, must be provided in order that an American navy may keep in the van of modern methods.

The English proudly assert that the Dreadnought is absolutely the "last word" in battleship construction, and will be for many years.

Each year, however, advances in battleship designs have been considered as marking the limit of possible development, but each year, also, some new features have been adopted so that it would seem that the advance of this class of vessel has not yet arrived at its finality.

FOUND BADLY WOUNDED.
Toronto, May 17.—Writing in agony in the bush at the end of Bascom road, Rosedale, with his throat cut and wounds on his head and lower part of the body, John G. Colvin, of 670 Shaw street, was found by John McArthur as the latter was walking in the bush. An ordinary pocket knife with a blade about three inches long was the weapon used. The man was taken to the hospital, where he is in a critical condition.

THE STORY OF
THE CAPTUREPosse of Mounted Police Found Train
Robbers Camped in the Bush.

A despatch from Quilchena, B.C., tells the story of the capture on Monday afternoon at 1.30, about a mile from Douglas Lake, of the three train robbers by a posse of mounted police under Sergt. Wilson. The men were tracked from Campbell Meadows, via Fish Lake, through to Douglas Lake, by Provincial Constable Fernie, who saw the three men walking along the road near Murray Creek, a short distance from Douglas Lake.

Ferne was alone and set out for Chapparan Lake, knowing that the mounted police were in that vicinity. He notified Sergt. Wilson, who, with his men, started off in the direction indicated by Fernie. The men, meanwhile, had camped in the brush, and no signs of them could be seen. Fernie made for the Douglas Lake ranch to send word to Quilchena to bring the bloodhounds. In his absence the mounted police, under Wilson, made search and suddenly came upon the three men finishing lunch.

They rode right up to them and Wilson asked them what they were doing. The oldest man said they were prospecting. Wilson asked where and was answered "Over there," pointing south. Wilson then said:

"I guess you're the men we want for the hold-up," and at once covered Edwards with his revolver. One of the troopers covered another man, while the third suspect rolled into a ditch nearby crying "Well, it's all up, boys," and commenced firing at the police, who returned the fire.

Shortly, as the man is nicknamed, the cat of the capture continued cried out to quit after ten or a dozen shots had been fired. He had evidently emptied his revolver and had to give in.

"If," he said, "I had had my automatic revolver there would have been a hot time around here, you bet."

It was found that Shorty had been shot in the leg, and he said, "It is a d—- pity you didn't put it at Douglas Lake and the prisoners taken on to Quilchena, and Dr. Tutill of Nicola, was sent for and attended the wounded man.

The prisoners and mounted police, with Constable Fernie, remained over night at Quilchena, and left for Kamloops at 7.30 in the morning. After their arrest the prisoners were found to have several automatic revolvers, and a large quantity of ammunition. Their names, they say, are George Edwards, William Dunn, called Shorty, and Loula Coquihoun. Edwards is said to be the celebrated Bill Miner, who has been concerned with several hold-ups in the west. There is little doubt but that this is correct.

Edwards had been for the last two years in Nicola and Similkameen districts prospecting. In an interview this morning he said that neither he nor the others had anything to do with the holdup. He said they had started from Pothole lake, near Aspen Grove, intending to prospect eastward, toward Armstrong, behind Grand Prairie, and returning toward Nicola, came via Batchelor's Meadows, across Douglas lake trail, where they were arrested. When asked their reason for carrying such an armament, he replied that prospectors usually carried firearms and he did not think they carried too much. He said he could prove alibis and especially asked that he should not be condemned unheard. He answers to the description of the leader of the robbers.

Edwards is well known all through Aspen Grove copper camp and the Nicola country. He is rather pleasant to talk to and has an American accent. Capt. Seavey, of Thiel's Detective Agency, believes he is Bill Miner. William Dunn, called Shorty, answers the description of the second man. He has been prospecting down at Ashnola, near Hedley, and claims to be interested with Rogers, of the Nicole Plate mine, in several mining properties. He showed the greatest nerve of the three and there is no doubt that had the other two put up the fight he did, the police would have had a hard time arresting them.

He laughed while the doctor probed for the bullet in his leg and joked with those about him and repeated his former remark that it was a pity the bullet did not go through his head. Coquihoun answers the description of the third man except as regards age—he cannot be more than thirty.

He comes from Phoenix in the beauty country and claims to have been in district only a few months. He is rather reticent, and from his appearance is hardly likely to be taken as a member of a holdup gang.

Among the effects taken from the prisoners are the goggles worn by the leader and some articles supposed to have been taken from the mail car.

Captain Seavey, superintendent of the Thiel Detective Agency, Seattle, has been on the scene for several days and was close at hand when the arrest was made. He is now investigating the matter more thoroughly. Taylor, of Spokane, who shot Outlaw Smith, in Oregon the other day, was at hand in Quilchena with his bloodhounds to take up the track if wanted. Last night the prisoners were kept in a hall under the guard of Fernie, and the mounted police, Superintendent Hussey wired instructions to hold them there until his arrival, but the prisoners were under the charge of Sergeant Wilson, who decided to bring them right through to Kamloops, and left Quilchena at half past seven this morning, meeting Superintendent Hussey, who left Kamloops last night, with three railway detectives, at Rockford.

An interesting piece of evidence is that the dynamite left by the robbers on the track was wrapped up in a piece of the Inland Sentinel of November last, with an address on the label of an Aspen Grove subscriber. Aspen Grove is the place where Edwards has been lately.

Bill Morgan, alias E. A. Miner, alias Old Bill Miner, is an experienced man at the game. Although a Canadian by birth, Morgan usually exploited his peculiar talents on the other side of the line. He was sentenced to twenty-five years imprisonment in San Quentin, Cal., for train robbery. He served his term, minus an allowance for good conduct. He then came north, and on the 23rd of September, he held up the O. R. & N. train. Despite the doubled energy of Pinkerton men and railroad detectives, and the $1000 reward offered for his capture, he succeeded in escaping. He was traced further north and the local police kept their eyes open for him here. He was believed to have made for the Fraser. His description tallied pretty closely with that given by the engineer and trainmen on the occasion to Silverdale hold-up in September, 1904. Morgan's method is said to be characterized by extreme caution. He settled down to some legitimate occupation along the line he intended to rob and then made his preparations carefully. Then when circumstances and events were opportune he made his coup. The country and the means of escape were carefully thought out beforehand. A year ago he was described as a man of fifty years of age, but looking 55. His height was given as 5 feet 9-1/2 inches, and his build as slight, and he weighed 145 pounds.

A story has been going the rounds within the last day or two to the effect that the recent hold-up on the C.P.R. was much more serious than reported, that the robbers had dynamited the mail car and got away with a big haul of cash, and that the wrecked car had been left behind when the train resumed its interrupted journey, is absolutely denied by local officials of the railway company. The story is branded as a pure fake, and the statement made positively that the mail car which came in with the train is the same as was gone through by the robbers.

Many and generous have been the laurels of praise that have been showered upon Madame Albani in years of concert touring. This sister of fair Canada—a native born Canadian—was a great favorite with the late Queen Victoria, and it was fitting that she should be chosen to sing at the memorial services in Westminster Abbey. But Albani, while drinking in the warmest plaudits in her concert touring in all parts of the world, never meets with a more cordial and enthusiastic reception than when she returns to her native country. The Canadian people never seem to tire of her singing. In her various returns to Canada for concert purposes, and in the extended series of concerts that she usually gives in the chief cities from ocean to ocean, she absolutely insists on the use of a Heintzman & Co. piano. Out of her large experience she has said, "The tone of the Heintzman & Co. piano is delightful. The elasticity of action is marvellous, every note ringing out clear, pearly and limpid quality. It excels any piano I have ever used."

Mr. Brick told them all they wanted to know and they were well satisfied. They will locate in a few days.

SCHOOL BOARD MET

The Edmonton public school board met on Tuesday evening in Mackay avenue school. The Building committee reported having received tenders for the building of a fence around the Woodward school grounds, and they recommended the acceptance of the tender of the Western Construction Co. of Edmonton. The report was adopted, the fence to be built of spruce only.

Regarding the request of Mr. Hutton for an increase in salary, a time sheet had been prepared by Mr. Hutton, which recommended that he be paid $369 annually. The Board accepted the report.

The Building committee asked for more time to report upon the fencing and abutments at Mackay avenue school.

Dr. Brathwaite wrote requesting the board to notify school teachers that any cases of absence of students should be reported to the health authorities. The communication said that there were several cases of sickness where a doctor had not been called in, and in order to better prevent an epidemic it was only right that the health authorities should be notified of any cases of prolonged absence. The communication was filed.

The committee appointed to look after the changes in the electric wiring of Queen's ave. school requested by the Inspector of the Ottawa Fire Insurance Co. reported that the changes had been made.

A request from the Minister of Public Works that the fixtures in the assembly room at the McKay avenue school, which was used during the session of the Legislature, be allowed to remain as they are, and that the furniture be stored there, was granted. It was moved by Dr. Ferris and Mr. May that the Legislature be charged $400 for the use of the assembly room during the session, and for the privilege of storing furniture there. The motion carried.

A by-law was passed authorizing the board to borrow $2000 from the Imperial Bank.

The building committee was authorized to build a sidewalk at Mackay avenue school from the street to the western entrance.

NEW RESTAURANT FOR McDOUGALL STREET

E. W. Shaw, late of the C. P. R. dining car service, has taken a lease of the premises next door to the temporary post office on McDougall street and intends opening up a restaurant. Mr. Shaw has leased the upstairs as well as the ground floor, and it is his intention to fit the whole place up, from cellar to garret, in the most sumptuous style. He is applying to the license commissioners for a cafe license, something which does not at present exist in the city, and with a show shop coming to town and all the other frills and furbelows of a metropolitan life, the time is plain sight when Edmonton will have its own Delmonico.
